PARTY STRANDED ON BOARD POWER BOAT RESCUED FROM LAKE

Starvation Faced Eight
—Crippled Cat-Boat
Safe

CLEVELAND, July 13.—Eight Clevelanders stranded aboard the powerboat Adelphi, off Gulf Island, were saved from possible starvation late yesterday by the Cleveland Yacht Club's boat, Adelaide. The crankshaft of the Adelphi snapped Sunday night. No food was aboard-ship and all Sunday night the party sent up distress flares. Meanwhile, three heavy wheels, used for ballast, were chained and lowered into the rough water for anchors. In this fashion the Adelphi held fast until the Adelaide drew alongside.

Also aboard the Adelphi were Fred Squires and his sons, Fred, Jr., and Robert; a niece, Margaret Hall, and four junior yacht club members, Wendell Chamberlain, Ellis Minner, William Eckert and Carl Schuele.

PUT IN BAY, O., July 13.—Weak and hungry, after a 24-hour battle with high winds and rough waters, Steve De Orlo and two companions, crept into Put-In-Bay shortly before midnight on the crippled Detroit Cat-boat CK-23.

Searchers had been cruising the lake for the craft since early yesterday, after receipt of reports that it had disappeared. At first it was feared the boat had capsized in the storm.

De Orlo left Detroit in company with two other cat-boats for the Interlake Yachting Association regatta which opened today. The three ships were caught in Sunday night's gale and at Middle Sister Island two of the yachts followed a westerly course, while the CK-23 headed east. That was the last seen of her until last midnight.

The three men were given stimulants and were ordered to bed immediately after their arrival. Their story has not yet been told. Yachting association officials said, however, that the CK-23 had been blown around at Middle Sister island with a broken spar.

After vainly signalling for assistance the men finally rigged a temporary spar and when the gale lessened, set sail.

LAST CHAPTER OF SUB DISASTER IS WRITTEN WITH BURIAL OF CREW

WASHINGTON, July 13.—The last chapter in the story of the S-51's disastrous dive to the bottom of the ocean nine months ago is being written here.

Bodies of four members of the submarine's heroic crew arrived today, and will be interred in Arlington National Cemetery, burying ground of the nation's military and naval heroes.

Relatives of three others of the thirty-two lost on the boat asked the navy department for burial in Arlington, but those bodies have not been recovered.

The bodies of Lieutenant F. D. Foster, Washington; coxswain, Harry D. Elser, machinist's mate, Rudy Firm, Klein, Mont., and firemen, Charlie C. Thomas, Chillicothe, O., were taken to a receiving vault in a hearse soon after they arrived.

Today or tomorrow or the next day, whenever relatives of the heroes arrive here, sailors in blue and white will carry their comrades on their shoulders to new graves.

Here is a remarkable view of the explosion of the U. S. Naval Arsenal at Lake Denmark, N. J., where it is believed nineteen were killed and hundreds injured. The picture was taken a short time after the series of blasts started and shells were exploding around the plane from which the photographer made the pictures.

FIND SEVERED BODY OF YOUNG WOMAN IN BOSTON GRAVE YARD

Dismembering Done By Expert Surgeon Is
Belief

BOSTON, July 13.—The body of a young woman cut into eight pieces, was found in two cardboard boxes and a burlap bag beside the stone wall, bordering the New Calvary Cemetery, Mattapan, today.

The head and torso were packed in a brown pasteboard box, which bore the name and address of a florist. Other parts of the body had been divided between the smaller box and the bag. The head had not been severed.

The vital organs had been wrapped in a Boston newspaper, dated June 27, and stuffed beneath the torso.

Medical Examiner Timothy J. Leary, who has begun an autopsy, said he had found a fresh incision on the body, indicating an operation had been performed for appendicitis. The body had been dismembered by an expert surgeon, Dr. Leary said. There was nothing on the body or on the clothing concealed in the parcels to establish the victim's identity.

The woman was described as between twenty and thirty years old, evidently a person of refinement. She was a brunette, with bobbed hair and dark eyes.

The legs were clad in gray stockings and the torso in a chemise.

Other apparel including a white night-dress was contained in the parcel which had been wrapped with the newspaper.

The boxes and bag were carried to the cemetery about 5 a. m. today in an automobile, police believe, with indications that it was planned to bury them in the graveyard.

Torrio Jennel, of Mattapan, an employee of the Boston State Insane Hospital, discovered them while on his way to work.

LISBON, July 13.—Twenty persons were reported to have been drowned today when a fishing boat capsized at Oporto.

CLEVELAND, O., July 13.—Jewelry valued at $750 was stolen from the home of Mrs. Joseph Felder here during the night. Police believe the theft marked the return of the "phantom burglar," whose robberies have netted thousands of dollars.

SURRENDERED RIFF LEADER TO BE EXILED ON REUNION ISLAND

PARIS, July 13.—Abd El Krim, the surrendered leader of the Rifians, will be exiled to the Island of Reunion, off the East African Coast in the Indian Ocean, Premier Briand announced today.

The announcement came immediately after the Franco-Spanish accord relative to Morocco had been signed in Briand's office by Premier Prima De Rivera, of Spain.

The Rifian chief has not yet been officially informed of his plans for his exile but friends have

CHARGE YOUTH WITH MURDER OF THREE

Police Seek Accomplice Who Is Accused of Actual Slayings By Partner—Companion Confesses In Note

CHICAGO, July 13.—Thomas McWane, 19, was held for the grand jury on a triple charge of murder today, while police scoured Chicago, for Joseph Granite, 21, who, crazed with drugs, hid on a roof all day yesterday and then disappeared last night. He left a note on the roof threatening to commit suicide and admitting that he had killed two persons. He apparently was unaware his third victim had died.

Granite and McWane were charged with having murdered a pretty young woman Sunday school teacher, a church treasurer, and a taxicab driver Sunday night.

Protesting his innocence, McWane, said he had merely stood by when Granite shot and killed Ludwig Rose, 25, taxicab driver when the latter attempted to jump from his cab after Granite and McWane had bound his hands and feet, taken away all of his clothes but his underwear and thrown him in the rear seat of the vehicle.

His clothing in tatters and his hands and face cut and bruised, in a crash of the cab that resulted in his arrest and Granite's escape McWane continued his story of the attempted holdup of Frederick Hein, 42, church treasurer and Miss Marie Blang, 23, Sunday school teacher, both of whom were sitting in Hein's auto in front of Miss Blang's home.

McWane said that Hein attempted to resist the holdup and that Granite shot and killed him. Miss Blang screamed, McWane declared.

The program was divided into two parts, the first a concert including vocal and instrumental selections and dancing; the latter a spectacular presentation and

PROBE OF HIGHWAY PURCHASES STARTS

COLUMBUS, O., July 13.—The recently deferred investigation of purchases of the state highway department was launched today by State Auditor Joseph T. Tracy who has assigned Frank B. Thomas and B. B. Vance of the state bureau of accounting, to conduct the inquiry.

Upon the advice of Attorney General C. C. Crabbe, Tracy held up a voucher for $52,000, payable to the George B. Curd Equipment Co., Cincinnati, until the purchases involved have been checked.

The inquiry will cover all purchases of equipment and materials in an effort to determine what commissions have been realized and whether overcharges have been made, Tracy said.

The Curd Co. has opened its books for the examiners.

COAL OPERATORS DISCUSS INDUSTRY

COLUMBUS, O., July 13.—Coal operators from throughout the state assembled here today to devise plans for re-habilitating the Ohio industry and solving other difficulties which have beset the mines.

The major topic of discussion was the Jacksonsville wage pact, negotiated by United Mine Workers of America, and under provisions of which the operators must pay a minimum wage of not less than $7 a day.

Scores of coal companies have closed their mines, rather than attempt to abide by the agreement, which they assert, prevents profitable mining.

Another issue before the operators was the production from non-union fields of Ohio, Kentucky and West Virginia.

RACHFORD IS STILL REPORTED MISSING FROM NAVY ARSENAL

Dispatches Say Xenian
Unaccounted For
Since Blast

DOVER, N. J., July 13.—Fred J. Rachford, Xenia, O., private, U. S. Marine Corps, missing since the munitions blast at the Navy Arsenal had not been found today, and navy officials were inclined to believe he is dead.

In this connection it was pointed out that six of the nineteen bodies recovered have not been identified and one of them may be that of Rachford. On the other hand Rachford may be alive and has not yet reported to Marine Headquarters.

Another Ohioan missing was Oliver C. Bliss, private, U. S. M. A. Waterville, Ohio.

Ernest Powell, Hamilton, Ohio, and Frank C. Weber, Cleveland, were among those killed and whose bodies were recovered.

Xenia relatives received wires Monday and Tuesday direct from the chief of marines at Washington, D. C., that the local boy is still numbered among the missing. A previous wire from the chief of police at Dover contained the statement he could not furnish information, while a wire Monday from naval headquarters at Dover said the government refused to disclose information.

DOVER, N. J., July 13.—Patrols of marines and sailors were sent into the area of the Lake Denmark naval arsenal again today. They resumed the search for victims of the explosions which wiped out the arsenal and thus far has run up a known death list of nineteen, with several still missing.

The men not only will go into the arsenal grounds but squads will search the woods nearby and probably will drag the lake, where it was reported one or more bodies had been seen.

Officers in charge believe the search might reveal additional dead and considered that particularly it might result in some civilian missing being accounted for. Danger of additional serious explosions was considered as having been reduced to almost nothing, over night.

Today there was comparative quiet within the arsenal area. No large shells were exploding. Occasionally there would be a bang from the mass of debris which would scatter dust for a few yards, but the explosions were firing caps and small ammunition.

The body of Lieut. Herman Schrader, of Long Beach, Calif., was identified today. It was one of those found near the building, C-31, a storehouse of TNT depth bombs and high explosive shells, around which 16 men were found killed at their posts of duty, evidently fighting fire. It was believed Schrader had taken up direction of the fire fighting force and had been killed with his squad of men when the contents of the building exploded.

Doubt was expressed as to whether identification could be made of the bodies not yet identified. If identification proves impossible, they may be buried together in a single grave at Arlington National Cemetery, near Washington.

Bodies of those identified will be sent to relatives as claimed.

PONZI SEEKING TO REGAIN FREEDOM

HOUSTON, Tex., July 13.—Seeking to reduce his bail from $20,000 to $10,000 and anticipating freedom on bond, supplied by Houston friends, Charles Ponzi, Boston money promoter, today was scheduled to make application for a writ of habeas corpus before District Judge Walter E. Monteth.

At the same time the efforts of Ponzi were protested by Attorney General-Springley, of Massachusetts, who contends the promoter should remain in jail until Governor Miriam Ferguson grants or denies extradition.

He proposes Ponzi's bail should be fixed at $30,000.

TRIAL OF ALLEGED SLAYER STARTED

WEST UNION, O., July 13.—Thomas Hill, 59, was on trial here today charged with the murder of his crippled wife and her invalid mother.

Hill, after his arrest several months ago, confessed, according to police, that he burned the women alive by setting fire to his house. Both women were bed-ridden. At the time Hill, police declared, said he "was tired of caring for them." Hill's plea was expected to be temporary insanity.

GOVERNOR SMITH TO WELCOME COOLIDGE INTO EMPIRE STATE

Luncheon At Summer
White House To Feature Meeting

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., July 13.—The President of the United States and Gov. Al Smith, of New York, who smiles politely when eastern Democrats hail him as "our next president" will sit down to luncheon in a wilderness setting Friday with the fishpole in the corner and mosquitoes buzzing at the screen.

Gov. Smith is welcoming the nation's executive to the empire state, while the president will thank him for the unofficial welcome already given to the executive by residents here.

The governor will be accompanied by Mrs. Smith and the usual aides. The length of his visit is problematical.

President Coolidge had planned to make a week end trip to Plymouth, Vt., and there is speculation here as to whether he will postpone it because of the change in date of the luncheon with Gov. Smith, or whether he will leave for Plymouth late Friday night or the next morning.

Meanwhile President Coolidge intends to keep improving his fishing technique. He has already become the pride of his tutors in the art, and is no longer considered a tenderfoot.

JOCKEY BADLY HURT IN TRACK MIX-UP

CLEVELAND, July 13.—The condition of Jockey C. Hutton, injured during a bad spill at Maple Heights race track late yesterday, was described today as "grave." Hutton and Blue Streak, the latter up on Blue Streak, piled up in the last fifty yards of the eighth race when Skyrms' girth strap broke.

Skyrm was thrown against the inside rail and Request, Hutton up, piled up Blue Streak. Hutton was thrown and trampled by Jet-tison who was stretching it for the end of the race.

Skyrm was not seriously injured.

NOT INTERESTED

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., July 13.—President Coolidge today through his spokesman said that so far he has not interested himself in the coming congressional elections.

The spokesman said the president had made no plans for presidential interference in the elections and desired the public to know that whatever actions and opinions were attributed to him, were surmises and not statements of facts.

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Navy officials today defended the location of the destroyed Lake Denmark, N. J., arsenal, as they prepared for a double investigation of the $90,000,000 blast of high explosives and four inch cannon shells.

An attempt to have congress appropriate money to rebuild the storage plant, the largest in the navy, will be made, but not until the disaster had been thoroughly investigated.

CHURCH UNITED BY EXPPELLING MEMBERS

MILFORD, Kas., July 13.—The First Methodist Church here is again united—for the first time in a number of years—after all the members had been publicly expelled by the pastor, the Rev. Charles Everett Draper.

For some time the church has been split by dissension among the members. Draper pointed out that no constructive steps could be taken despite his efforts as peace-maker.

Finally he ordered all members from the church declaring he could not "determine just who is among the membership."

"I wonder if the devil knows who's who around here. The only way I know to straighten out things is to turn every one of you out."

"The only way you can ever get back is to come forward publicly and take the vows of the church. If enough are willing to do that, we will reorganize the church and start all over again."

When the next meeting was held, all of the former members were present, asking to take the vows and twelve new members had been added.

WILL PETRIFIED GAS CAUSE HEM MORE BAD LUCK?

If the authorities should investigate the gas pill which is promised to revolutionize the motor industry there would probably be had luck in store for Hem, president of the company and hero of Gas Buggies, the comic strip that appears daily in The Evening Gazette and The Morning Republican.

Everybody knows that the gas pill is a fake and that Alec Smart, the crooked promoter, drew Hem into the morass of graft in order to give prestige to the company until Smart and his cohorts could clean up on the stock sale to the gullible public. But even the astute Amy has failed to see the foul purpose back of her husband's apparent good fortune.

If she does find Hem has been taken in, we feel sorry for him. In the meantime the Plops, good friends of Hem and Amy, may break in the crash when it does come. It all makes interesting picture-story in which Beck the cartoonist, tells an enthralling tale.

OFFICIALS OF BANK ORDERED TO COURT

STUEBENVILLE, O., July 13.—Three officials of the defunct Union Savings Bank of Yorkville have been ordered to appear in common pleas court here on July 31, in connection with liquidation of the institution which failed.

The officials, Thomas S. Jones, vice president; former congressman W. R. Francis, a director and J. E. Francis, were summoned at the behest of State Superintendent of Banks, H. E. Scott, who asserts $1,000,000 in securities and deposits are missing from the bank.

Scott has launched similar action against officials of the People's Bank of Tiltonville, which closed recently. The latter officials have been ordered to appear on August 7.

EAT LOTS OF STRAWBERRIES BUT NOT WITH SUGAR AND CREAM SAYS DOCTOR

Did you ever have "hives?" If you are one of the unfortunate victims, you have probably been told that they were the result of eating strawberries, providing you suffered the attack during the berry season.

That's all the bunk, according to one Xenia druggist. The real cause for hives is not really known, at least to the knowledge of this authority. It is his firm conviction that "hives" are not caused by too much acid in the blood from foods containing acid, but an eruption of the general system. Different things cause "hives" with different people he says.

"Eat lots of strawberries" physicians say, "but don't eat them with sugar and cream. Sugar alone is all right, and cream alone is all right, but combining both with any kind of fruit is poor health practice."

The origin of the strawberry, seems to be shrouded in mystery.

just as is the origin of "hives." It is mainly an American plant, it is believed however, it grows more largely on this continent than anywhere else in the world, and the annual American crop is valued at $20,000,000, not counting the berries grown in home gardens.

The Indians ate strawberries long before the coming of the white man to this country. They mixed them with meal to make a kind of strawberry bread. After the Pilgrim colony in Massachusetts had passed its first hard winter, they found the little berries growing wild in the fields, and this was probably the first time they had ever tasted them.

About 1700 the Colonists began transplanting the wild vines to their dooryards and the berries were cultivated. Market cultivation however, was not extensively developed for some fifty years, but since that time it has grown to be a leading American horticultural industry. The development of the small variety of the berry that grew in uncultivated fields and

BERNARD MACFADDEN

Chronic articular rheumatism sometimes develops after one or more recurrences of an acute attack. But more often it is gradual and insidious in its appearance. Persons most liable to this disease are those whose occupations subject them to cold and dampness.

The first manifestation is stiffness and pain in one or more joints of the organism, especially the knees and hands. This disease is the slow development of years. In the treatment of chronic rheumatism, a general vitality-building process must be adopted together with the stimulation of the circulation of the affected parts. I would advise a fasting regimen as long as the patient can endure it without manifesting signs of weakness. Fasting might be continued anywhere from three to thirty days, depending upon the weight and strength. As with acute rheumatism so with chronic, a milk diet may immediately increase the inflammation. In many cases this increase will be noticeable only for a week or ten days, after which it will begin to subside but should it continue, a strict meat diet as follows can be used with great benefit. Secure a choice cut of ordinary round steak; have the butcher remove all gristle or cartilage and then macerate or grind the meat as if for hamburger steak. Place this meat in a vessel in a very small quantity of boiling water, and allow it to simmer until the redness has disappeared. It is now ready to serve. Do not use salt or butter in this diet. Three meals of meat may be eaten each day, morning, noon and night. A half hour before each meal take from a half pint to a pint of water as hot as can be taken without sipping. The first day take only a quarter of a pound of meat at each meal, on the second day a half pound at each meal, and as much as the appetite craves thereafter. After continuing this meat diet for two or three weeks, the patient can revert to the milk diet, this facilitating recovery. Provided that the bowels can be kept active a salad diet or fruit and nut diet may be used. The daily wet sheet pack will aid in overcoming chronic symptoms.

CHOOSING GIFT FOR WEDDING HARD TASK SAY INVITED FOLKS

June brides who are about now being initiated into the mysteries of housekeeping, have found, like their predecessors of years before, an abundance of silver for their choice.

home among the wide variety of other wedding gifts.

Silver is recognized as the most popular gift for the bridal couple and surely the most appreciated, since it can always be employed. Xenia jewelers and all stores handling silver do a nice business during the wedding season and offer a wide selection of silver stock to wedding guests.

China probably ranks next in popularity to silver as a wedding gift. Dishes can be purchased for every use and design and like silver too are always appreciated. Young married couples of today, with their cozy, tiny apartments cannot use the bulky gifts of a generation ago and welcome the receipt of handier articles.

Electrical appliances are invaluable to the brand-new housewife, according to all sales persons. Percolators, irons, stoves, toasters and dish-washers are among the most popular.

It is reported that the majority of bridegrooms value more than any other gift, a cocktail shaker which has been wisely chosen by some friend or relative. Prohibition seems to have drawn from the artists the best that is in them. They grace dining room and kitchens in the best-regulated families.

Pictures, prints and etchings, are considered as good "buys" for the wedding gift seeker. The matter of choosing a wedding gift is not so strenuous if the aid of the salesman or woman is enlisted.

J., has been elected by the faculty of Mount Holyoke College, South Hadley, Mass., to spend a year in study at the Université de Paris, France. This privilege is accorded only to students who show special aptitude and maintain high rank in the regular class roomwork.

Miss Hyslop, accompanied by her mother, will sail for France July 17. After a year of study and travel there, which work will be accepted in lieu of her junior year's work at Mount Holyoke, she expects to return to Mount Holyoke College to complete her course there in 1928.

In her sophomore year, she maintained the first rank and was awarded the Key Prize, Scholar of the sophomore class. Following this, she was elected by the college faculty along with two other students, to spend a year at the Université de Paris.

The example set by his sister, Martha Constance, has evidently stimulated her brother, Francis Edwin Hyslop, who was valedictorian of the class of 1925, Haddonfield High School, in addition to this honor, he was awarded the Childrey Memorial Prize, which is determined on the following basis: scholarship, 50 percent; class leadership, determined by vote of the class 20 percent; participation in outside activities, 15 percent; cooperation with the faculty, determined by faculty vote, 15 percent.

Their father is a graduate of Xenia High School and is now private secretary of a large firm in Philadelphia, residing in New Jersey on a farm.

EX-SERVICE MEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB FORMED IN COUNTY

Organization of the Greene County Ex-Service Men's Republican Club was effected at a meeting of a large number of World War veterans and ex-service men at the Court House Saturday.

Initial election of officers resulted in the selection of Raymond Horen, president; Joe Adams, vice-president, and Harold Dice, secretary-treasurer.

Purpose of the club is primarily to interest itself in politics with incidental support of the republican party in Greene County.

In a resolution adopted at the meeting, unanimous endorsement was given to the candidacies of Secretary of State Thad Brown for the Republican nomination for Governor, and of Paul H. Creswell, this city, for a second term as Republican State Central Committee man from this district at the August 10 primary.

Greene County politics will be taken up at the next meeting and endorsements made, it was said.

Meetings will be held at the Court House.

The resolution presented and unanimously adopted at the Saturday meeting follows in full:

Resolved: That the Greene County Ex-Service Men's Republican Club unanimously endorse and pledge active support to the following members of the American Legion, who are candidates for public office, and recommend to the voters of this county that these men be nominated at the coming primary—

Because they have served their country in time of war;

Because they are men of high character and integrity;

Because they are well and favorably known in this county with hosts of friends looking to them, and most of all because they are capable of filling the office for which they are candidates:

For governor—Thad Brown.

For state central committee man—Paul H. Creswell.

GERMANS APPEAL TO SAVE RADICALS

BERLIN, July 13.—A cable from Berlin signed by several eminent German citizens today was sent to Gov. Fuller of Massachusetts requesting another trial for Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Van Zetti, alleged radicals, convicted of murder in connection with a payroll robbery in South Braintree, Mass.

The signatures included Count Von Bernstorff, former German Ambassador to the United States; Maximilian Harden, Albert Einstein, Thomas Mann and Princeps Mechtild Lichnowski, wife of the former ambassador to Great Britain.

Since that time a guard has been stationed at that point while repairs are under way.

Other roads over the county were partially blocked and in some instances made impassable by falling limbs and trees, according to delayed reports of the storm damage received.

FRANCE AGREES TO PAY GREAT BRITAIN

LONDON, July 13.—Winston Churchill, chancellor of the exchequer, today announced in the house of commons that the house had been hoping for seven years—that France agreed to pay her $3,125,000,000 war debt to Great Britain.

Churchill said that Joseph Caillaux, French minister of finance, had agreed that the debt should be paid over sixty-two years, this year's annuity amounting to $20,000,000. Thereafter the annuities would rise to $30,000,000, $40,000,000 and $50,000,000. The agreement, like that recently concluded in Washington, is subject to ratification by the French parliament.

ADVANTAGES OF TAX REDUCTION

Income tax receipts for the second quarter have exceeded all expectations, and in spite of the recent slash in rates, indications are that total collections for the first half of 1926 will run well over the amount collected for the same period in 1925.

The old theory of "soaking the rich man" to raise taxes has been pretty thoroughly knocked in the head. In fact a tax policy that soaks either the rich man or poor man, big industry or small industry, will dry up the sources of productive enterprises.

Every city, county and state can profit by the object lesson furnished by the reductions in federal income taxes.

If the state and local taxing authorities and public officials would devote their energies to finding ways and means to reduce taxes, instead of inventing new methods of taxation, local business in every community would be greatly benefited. New developments with increasing taxable assets would furnish new sources from which to secure more tax revenue.

Under our present system of higher and higher taxes and more and more bureaus, commissions, state undertakings and interference with private business, thousands of investors prefer to keep their money in tax-exempt government bonds. This removes billions of dollars from productive enterprise and the tax rolls, and piles up the burden on remaining taxable property, which consists chiefly of farms, homes and employing industries.

NOT HOW LONG, BUT HOW

It would be a joke on the savants and the scientists who specialize in rejuvenation, mental or physical, if when the time comes that man can just as well live to be 150 as 65 or 70, he should not know what to do with his years. Longevity in itself is not virtuous. Many a man of 105 has done nothing more for the last 40 years of his life than sit in the sun and sleep. And many a man who has died at 40 has brimmed his full of activity and experience. It isn't how long you live, but what you do with life that counts most. And these men who focus their attention upon a century or over as if it were the height of success might better teach men to spend wisely the time they now waste.

CAUSES OF HATRED

If you are shut up with the same person long enough, in relative isolation from others you come finally either to love or hate him. Indifference is practically out of the question. That is the reason why only love sanctifies marriage. It is the reason why Explorer MacMillan enjoins silence on his companions. If they let each other alone, they can endure each other through the long isolation. If they try to be intimate, it is almost certain that they will bore and then hate each other.

Few of us have to face the ordeal of Arctic silence, but most of us are, or will be, married.

Moral: First, love your wife. Second, have each of you enough outside interests to escape the calamity of boring each other into loathing.

Today's Talk

MY DEAR OLD FRIEND

With the passing years the dear old friends loom like familiar stars.

As we learn how few there are who really stand the acid test of friendship, then it is that we come to realize how really short life is anyway. For in the span that is ours, there seems but time to gather a little handful of our way.

But somehow this little group is very precious. The intelligent mind, the understanding heart, the peculiar and interesting personalities of the favored and beloved few grow with the years. Even the failings and faults get from us but a tolerant smile. For the "overlook" in sincere and enduring friendship is as fine and great as the "inlook."

The other day I received a letter from my dear old friend of former years. It came to me like a fresh pot of flowers placed in my room. All the fragrance and beauty of the old friendship were there. The humor of the man, the quaint interest in unusual things, the desire for thought food, the kindness and gentleness and big heartedness of the man. All glowed from his letter.

He signed his letter: "Old Rain in the Face," a name given him in former years because of our journeying together in strange lands.

When losses come and the clouds get too thick, the dear old friend's interest and love shine through them all and give sun and soft shadows that make a beautiful day.

Nothing is ever as bad as it seems. Life is really very pleasant and good. But life in general is infinitely bigger than your life. We are trapped up too much in our own individual desires, lacks, and failings. They do not matter so much as do the things far beyond—other lives, other interests, higher places yet to climb.

If you have one or two dear old friends, you are full of wealth!

SCHLESINGER WILL CUT DETOUR NUMBER

COLUMBUS, July 13.—Ohio motorists will have fewer detours to contend with under a new policy announced by George F. Schlesinger, state highway director.

The director has instructed all division engineers to avoid setting up detours except when it is absolutely necessary. This will mean elimination of detours on roads under repair by having the workmen maintain an open road along the regular route while repairing one side at a time.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES

Mrs. C. C.: "Some time ago another reader asked for the following, which a friend has given me: 'Directions for a crocheted Straw Hat—Chain four, join, one single crochet in ring. Round Two: Two single crochets in each stitch. Round Three: One single crochet in first stitch, two single crochets in next. Repeat from * around. Round Four: * One single crochet in each of first two stitches. Two single crochets in next; repeat from * around, thus increasing in every third stitch. Round Five: Increase in every fourth stitch. Increase in this way till there are fifty-six stitches around. Then work plain for two rounds. Or finish as suits your fancy, making more of a brim if desired.' I have made one of these hats myself for sports wear, in tan color, but do not know what to wear with it. Can you advise me?"

Answer: It is not exactly with in my province to give advice on clothes, but since you have been so kind as to send us the above directions I will, at least, tell you what I would wear with it: a Kasha light-weight wool skirt of light tan or buff-color light weight slip-over sweater with high neckline; a silk or a cotton broadcloth blouse (which falls over the skirt, under the sweater) of white or buff color, with turn-over collar which may be held down with a long bar pin in front (or you could wear a mannish necktie, buff-color, if you prefer); a light-tan suede (very narrow) belt, to hold down sweater; and buff-color stockings with tan crepe-rubber-soled shoes. If you wished a cooler costume you could buy one of the pretty sports silk dresses in tan to match the hat. Every girl and woman should have at least one sports costume in her summer wardrobe. There are so many occasions upon which she can use it! But we housekeepers often forget that we need not give up sports (be it only motoring or an occasional hike). We would all be more efficient—more "fit" physically for our housework—if we refused to neglect out-of-door pursuits.

Bride: "I have a beautiful alabaster vase. How can I clean it?" Answer: Sponge with flannel moistened with spirits of turpentine will remove all kinds of stains.

EARLY LAWYERS

Hidden away in the recesses of the attic of the Court House are several boxes containing documents concerned with the admission to the local bar of a number of Greene County's earliest lawyers.

The earliest in the list was that of William Alexander, admitted in 1817. The latest was Perry Hawes admitted in 1862. The list includes twenty-one lawyers, not the total number of course who were admitted between 1817 and 1862.

It was the custom in those days for the applicant to be examined by three or more members of the bar—usually three, but often five. Their certificates were then turned over to the court with their recommendation, whereupon the judge formally admitted the applicants to the bar.

Names of the twenty-one lawyers whose bar papers were preserved, follow: William Alexander, 1817; Thomas Coke Wright, 1826; Cornelius Clarke, 1828; Henry Avery, 1831; Mark Anthony Sayre, 1834; Hiram Jones, 1837; Nathan Starbuck, 1838; Robert S. Reynolds, 1839; John B. McClymon, 1840; Charles T. Traugh, 1842; John H. Watson, 1844; William E. Morris, 1847; James D. Liggett, 1847; John Coates, 1847; George H. Frey, 1847; John F. Loyd, 1848; L. H. Culver, 1855; Darius Dislain, 1857; John L. Oram, 1860, and Perry Hawes, 1862.

But wait for the answers. They'll come in their turn
And some of the things you must grow up to learn.

"Don't wait too long."
This familiar song is being broadcast from the office of County Treasurer F. A. Jackson who announces prompt payments of semi-annual June taxes will avoid the last-minute jam around Tuesday, July 20, when the time limit expires.

Approximately $200,000 has already been received in the county's coffers but nearly $250,000 must still be collected within the next seven days to avoid delinquency.

Collection this year is proceeding with normal rapidity, Treasurer Jackson says. The treasurer's office is open every day and also on Saturday afternoons until July 20, for accommodation of tax payers, he continues.

Collection of June taxes totals approximately half a million dollars or more every year.

PEKING AUTOISTS MUST DRIVE SLOW

PEKING, July 13.—Peking motorists must henceforth refrain from driving their cars "at full speed" through the streets, says a police proclamation.

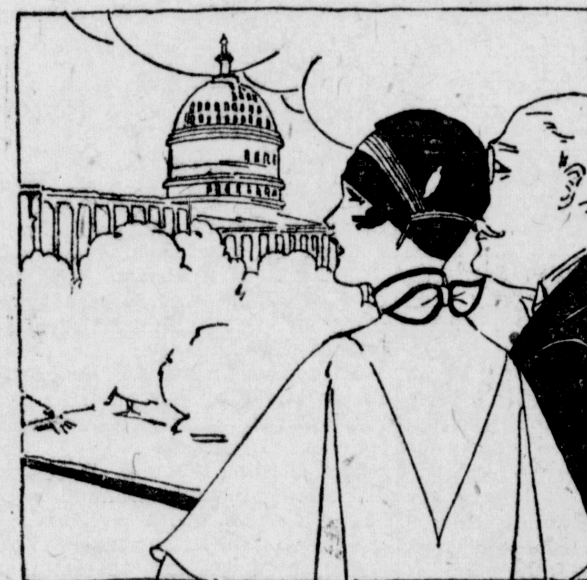

Two reasons are given: First, because of dry weather the streets are full of dust which is detrimental to health when inhaled. Second—apparently an after thought on the part of the police—accidents should be avoided.

MITZI BEGINS SEEING THINGS

By Jay V. Jay

"Yes, that is the Capitol Dome," explains Dad to Mitzi. They have just arrived in Washington and Mitzi is going to be shown a thing or two about this famous city. (High time the young lady learned, too.) "Always keep it in sight and you can remember the direction of the hotel," advises Dad. Mitzi promises to.

What fascinating windows the Washington shops have! Mitzi's been telling herself "just one more" for a mile or two. Who could blame her for looking at this two piece style with bows down the side. Another two piece dress combines plain and printed material. And now where is that Dome?

Of course, Mitzi succumbs to her usual temptation—window shopping. No one can look in two opposite directions at once and what if she does lose sight of the Dome? At Mitzi's left is a figured crepe dress with organdie collar and cuffs. The other dress is of wash silk with a sort of scalloped checked jabot.

Nowhere! No Dome in sight. But wasn't it fortunate that Mitzi sighted Aunt Sophia whom she caught looking a little helpless? Aunt Sophia has been doing shop windows too. (You've had time now to notice how smart Mitzi's silk hat is.) This is only their first day in Washington but they have both seen a lot. Oh, yes, a lot!

The Theatre

Never before in the history of the American theater has so much criticism been directed against the stage. Some declare it too sordidly commercial, others that it is too "nebulously futuristic" and still others that it is too lascivious, etc.

The Theater Magazine has prepared an interesting symposium, inviting the opinions of people—not actors, whose reactions to the theater as intelligent playgoers should be of special interest. If you have any particular views on the subject constructive or destructive, the magazine will be glad to print them, in a monograph not exceeding 500 words.

Here's what some of the first contributors have given to the department: "The present day theater, like every other human institution is a mixture of good and bad" says the Rev. John Haynes Holmes, minister of the Community Church, New York. "The bad, as represented and furthered by the commercial managers, is very bad, I doubt if the theater in any age has ever been worse in this respect than today. But the present-day theater has good in it as well as bad."

Never before has the theater been more alive or interesting than it is today to Mrs. George Bellows, who religiously follows New York theater offerings and knows what she is talking about. Mrs. Bellows goes on to praise recent offerings of the Rialto and points out the fine spots of several that have been unduly criticized.

"The trouble with the stage at the present time is that an appreciable section of it has come under the control of a cheap class of panders," characteristically exclaims John S. Summer, secretary, Society for the Suppression of Vice. "They have successfully created an appetite for the low order of drama—but the general public was ignorant and when warned from time to time was apathetic and as a consequence public officials felt justified in refraining from punitive or restraining action for which they heard no general demand. This gave the panders a feeling of safety in purveying their particular brand of 'dope' is what the reformer says."

Lucille Mendez, dancer and chorus graduate, has become the bride of Ralph Ince, cinema director and actor. Ince is the divorced husband of Lucy Stewart, sister of the famed Anita.

At the close of this, its eighteenth season, the Harvard Dramatic Club, is proudly boasting that three of its latest productions, "The Makropoulos Secret," "The Chief Thing," and "The Moon is a Gossamer," have reached that coveted goal of all plays and playwrights,—New York! Founded in 1908 by a group of undergraduates the original purpose of the Harvard Club was to give plays by undergraduates and recent alumni. The lack of plays from that source however, opened up a new field to the club, and a few years ago the policy of producing plays which had never before been presented in this country attracted immediate attention.

Brockman Resigns Helm Of Reserves; Cyphers Named

PITCHER SUCCEEDS TO MANAGERSHIP; CONLEY IS CAPTAIN

Will Play Merchants Sunday Instead of Springfield

G. H. Brockman, manager of the Xenia Reserves Baseball Club, has resigned, effective immediately, it became known Tuesday.

Chief Cyphers, who is playing alternately at third base and as pitcher this season, has been elected playing manager with Jug Conley, second baseman, appointed field captain.

Brockman declined to disclose the actual reason for his resignation in mid-season, but it is understood the action was due to certain managerial differences which involved finances.

During his leadership this season, Brockman rounded out one of the best teams to represent Xenia on the baseball diamond in years, the team winning eleven games and losing but four during the first half of the season just closed.

The change in managers has also been followed by a revision of the schedule for the remainder of the season. The most immediate change is the game scheduled for next Sunday.

Instead of playing the When Clothiers of Springfield a return game, the Reserves will oppose the Xenia Merchants in what is termed a mid-season game at Washington Park. Contest will start at 2:30 o'clock.

It is understood the team's lineup for the game will remain intact.

Cyphers is expected to also prove a popular manager. He has been the mainstay of the aggregation both on the mound and at bat this season, leading his mates in the latter respect with an average of .437. Conley is another well-liked player and is a fixture at second. His hitting has also played a prominent part in a majority of the Reserve victories.

FRANKS LEADING HITTERS ON XENIA RESERVES RECORDS SHOW

Eleven victories in fifteen games is the record of the Xenia Reserves for the first half of the season just closed.

During this time the team has been at bat 523 times, scored ninety-nine runs, and made 168 hits for a batting average of .321. The team is averaging six runs and eleven hits per game.

The team has mapped out a schedule which will carry the season well into October.

Batting averages follow:

Player	AB.	R.	H.	Pct.
Franks	2	1	2	1.000
Chambliss	5	0	3	.600
B. Franks	12	6	6	.500
Schoepf	6	2	3	.500
Allen	20	7	10	.500
Adams	2	1	1	.500
Swartz	4	1	2	.500
Cyphers	64	9	28	.437

After their experiences at the 1924 Olympic games and the recent French national hard court championships, several of the American tennis stars said they didn't care to return to France for championship competition.

The writer was a spectator at both tournaments, which were of international importance, and he agrees with the players that the arrangements made for their comfort and convenience were less than second class compared to Wimbledon, Forest Hills, Germantown and Longwood.

The committee in charge of the hard court championship, in which the greatest players in the world were entered, failed to secure enough officials. Several times newspapermen were asked to act as linesmen and before the important match between Mrs. Marlon Zinderstein Jessup and Madame Mathieu, the writer was asked to act as the umpire as the players were ready to start, and there were no officials present.

No drinking water was provided on the courts. One of the Argentine players asked for water and a bottle was brought to him from the club house. He accepted with thanks and the waiter, with annoyance, said:

"Ten francs, please."

The player didn't have any money with him and one of the American newspapermen in the gallery advanced the necessary francs. Vinnie Richards, Olympic champion and captain of the American men's team, said that he had been forced to pay twenty francs daily for water to take on the court with him.

No towels were provided. Players were forced to use their handkerchiefs and when they had become saturated they were forced to ask friends in the gallery to provide assistance.

There was a marked insufficiency of balls. In one match the players started with four balls and had to play four sets. Three balls were lost over the screen and they had to finish the match with one ball.

There were very few ball caddies and those who were available annoyed more than served the players and in several instances they were of such little use that the players asked them to be called from the courts.

Very little consideration was shown to the American and British players. In the round before the semi-final, Mrs. Kathlene McKane, British champion and Miss Mary K. Browne met. Instead of giving them the courtesy of the center court, where interested spectators could be seated in comfort, they were placed on out No. 12, in such an isolated place on the grounds that they couldn't be found without a guide.

Miles, Contoslavos and Bouman, two of the flashiest players in the tournament, also met in the same round and they were placed on a side court where the paid customers also had to ask the assistance of guides to find them.

At the same time in the center court where tennis honors are paid at Wimbledon and Forest Hills, the management chose to stage a couple of double matches that amount to absolutely nothing.

The stadium of the Racing Club in the Bois de Boulogne is the most beautiful tennis establishment in the world but more attention has been paid to architectural and natural beauty than to comfort and convenience for the competitors and the spectators.

SACRED MUSIC

By Margrett McNeill

Since man has had anything approaching what can be properly called an organized form of worship, there has been in attendance ceremonies which may be, with more or less degree of propriety, designated sacred music.

The spread of Christianity required that sacred music be purified. This work was first begun in the latter part of the fourth century by Saint Ambrose, one of the Latin fathers, and two centuries later Saint Gregory made valuable contributions to this endeavor.

One of the first attempts toward regeneration of the sacred drama was the production of a Passion play, "The Passion of Christ and the Sorrows of the Blessed Virgin."

A most important feature of present day sacred music is the Christmas Cantata. It is well to remember, in this connection, that the first of these ceremonies and undoubtedly the greatest, was sung to a small audience of Galilean shepherds on the hills near Bethlehem, by that angel's chorus announcing the birth of our Lord. Years later shepherds came at Christmas time to the Eternal City to pipe their sacred melodies before a representation of the Virgin Mother. Today elaborate preparations are made in most Christian churches to observe that occasion with appropriate sacred music, and for that purpose we have been given some of the world's greatest compositions of which Handel's "Messiah" is perhaps the most beautiful.

Can we wonder that music is occupying such an increasingly important place in modern day religious service?

One Hundred and Sixty National Forests Dot U. S. Today

Today there are 160 national forests in this country totalling more than 158,000,000 acres according to a book recently issued by the American Tree Association. These forests are maintained by the government for general welfare purposes since the trees mean a great material wealth in wood, water and land for forage, protect watersheds and are also playgrounds for pleasure seekers. The above map shows location of the forests and the inset is of Dr. Charles L. Pack, president of the Tree Association.

ROSILYN PAGE, the hard-worked daughter of a Long Island innkeeper, finds herself on his death, heiress of a huge fortune. She is deeply in love with

LANDIS RIDGEWAY, a charming young fellow in financial difficulties, who visited the inn regularly for ten years and was always kind to the lonely girl. His heart has been broken by the faithlessness of

LYDIA HARBROOK, beautiful and utterly heartless woman of the world who is planning to marry

STEVIE VAN VORST, a wealthy old roue, although she is fond of Landis.

MRS. FLORENCE RIDGEWAY, Landis' mother fearing poverty invites Rosilyn to visit her and her son, and induces Landis to marry Rosilyn, although he loathes himself for taking her advice. Immediately after the ceremony, Rosilyn overhears gossip in which she learns that Landis has married her for her money—she hears herself spoken of as the Gilded Rose. Heartbroken, she prepares to leave on her wedding journey.

Lydia Harbrook meanwhile is in Paris, revelling in a glorious spring day.

After an afternoon at the races with old Van Vorst Lydia returning home with him—her mind somewhat occupied with thoughts of Landis.

Rupert Briscoe, an old friend of Landis' meets Lydia at one of the night-clubs and breaks the news to her of Ridgeway's marriage to Rosilyn.

Rosilyn and Landis have been loaned a home for their honeymoon. After a long, silent, unhappy ride, they arrive at their destination, and are shown their rooms.

CHAPTER 18

Love Dies Hard

THE luggage was brought upstairs. Landis' cases were deposited in the dressing-room.

Then he himself appeared. When they were alone, he approached Rosilyn rather awkwardly, and stooped to give her a perfunctory kiss.

She drew back with a little laugh that sounded almost natural. Her swift resolution had consolidated. "Landis, there isn't any need for that you know. I think you and I understand each other."

He reddened.

"What do you mean?"

"That neither of us need play at loving—when we both know that the marriage—our marriage—was purely a matter of convenience."

She got the words out somehow, though each one was a stab of agony to her loving, sensitive young heart.

Dumbly he stared at her. She continued bravely:

"It's a fair enough bargain on both sides. You've lifted me up from nothing to a fine position——as your wife. On my side I can give you something, too. But we needn't keep up the pretence of caring—"

she choked back the lump that would rise in her throat—"for each other, any longer, beyond being just—just friends. See?"

"No, I don't see." He bit his lip, disturbed and startled.

"Then you will in time. And be grateful to me. I'm thinking of you as well as of myself." Then she added, as though it were an afterthought: "I've ordered the bed made up for you in the dressing room. You'll be quite comfortable in there—or there are plenty of other larger rooms to choose from."

He looked gravely, intently, at his young wife.

"A marriage—in name only—Rosilyn? Is that what you mean?"

"Yes, Landis, that is what I mean," she answered, very low.

Young Mrs. Landis Ridgeway, slowly descending the staircase of the great, gloomy country-house for the first honeymoon breakfast with her husband, looked anything but a radiant and happy bride.

"The maiden all forlorn, I'd call her! Not much class or style, is she?" whispered one servant to another, on the upper landing.

To which the second one replied: "When I took in their morning tea, you could have knocked me down with a feather, for the bridegroom wasn't in her room at all, but sleeping soundly in the dressing room, and she broad awake, with her eyes all swelled as though she'd spent the night crying! I'm right sorry for the girl, I am!"

Unconscious of these whispered comments, Rosilyn found her way to the dining room, where the morning meal was laid for two.

There was no sign of Landis. Rain was pouring down the windows, as though the very heavens had opened. Torrential rain, as heavy as last night! The odd idea came to Rosilyn that the sympathetic skies were weeping for the travesty of this—her honeymoon! To be married for one's money! Oh! humiliating thought!

And such irony of fate to learn the truth when it was just too late and the ceremony was over!

"Good morning, Lady Fair!" Landis strode into the room with a determined air of making the best of things and deposited a light kiss upon her cheek. To the sensitive unhappy little bride, the effort of the marital salute—so passionless so perfect—made the hurt ache more bitterly.

She replied, mechanically: "Horrible day, isn't it? Worse than yesterday!"

He flung a keen look at her. Gad! The poor child did look bad this morning. Yesterday's festivities had been too much for her. Not that there had been anything festive in the affair—he had loathed the inane formality, the pomp, the crowd of inquisitive spectators—he had loathed his own part in the business, too—if it hadn't been for his mother, and the thought that Rosilyn's affections were involved, darned if he would have had the courage to go through with it!

But what a relief it had been last night to learn that his bride looked on the whole thing merely as a marriage of convenience!

When she had first told him so, he had been utterly astounded, believing as he did, that she was fond of him.

Yet—once the shock was over—he was thankful that the child had shown such commonsense. He never would have thought it possible.

"A fair enough bargain on both sides," she had informed him, coolly. "You've lifted me from nothing to a fine position as your wife. On my side I can give you something, too. But we needn't keep up the pretence of caring—"

That had definitely "let him out"—the knowledge that her motive in accepting him had not been any foolish love, after all, but an understandable social ambition.

And yet—

From a talk they once had had together—it was on the very night her father died, wasn't it?—she had seemed so simple and unworldly, so capable of genuine emotion. He had kissed her, lightly and unthinkingly, and her reaction to that careless kiss had startled him, proving—as he had thought—that there were hidden and volcanic fires.

Her inheritance had killed all that, it seemed, bringing to the surface all the worldly instincts that, in his cynicism, he now accredited to every woman.

Well, Rosilyn was no worse than himself, was she?

Come Out of the Kitchen!

Grandmother might have been shocked by such a suggestion, for she was "kitchen-minded" from necessity.

For some years, Swift & Company, however, has been working to relieve the modern housewife of continuous kitchen work. Now, in addition to the many less expensive cuts adaptable to steam pressure and fireless cooker preparation, the housewife has the service of cooked meats.

"Ready-to-serve" meats are now available everywhere, for Swift & Company's nationwide channels of distribution offer prompt and direct service to retailers.

These meats, in great variety and delightfully appetizing, have revolutionized the work of the housewife, especially during the hot summer months.

PARTY STRANDED ON BOARD POWER BOAT RESCUED FROM LAKE

Starvation Faced Eight
Safe

CLEVELAND, July 13.—Eight Clevelanders stranded aboard the powerboat Adelphi, off Gull Island, were saved from possible starvation late yesterday by the Cleveland Yacht Club's boat, Adelaide. The crankshaft of the Adelphi snapped Sunday night. No food was aboard and all Sunday night the party sent up distress flares. Meanwhile, three heavy wheels, used for ballast, were chained and lowered into the rough water for anchors. In this fashion the Adelaide held fast until the Adelphi drew alongside.

Also aboard the Adelphi were Fred Squires and his son, Fred, Jr., and Robert; a niece, Margaret Hall, and four junior yacht club members, Wendell Chamberlain, Ellis Minner, William Eckert and Carl Schuele.

PUT IN BAY, O., July 13.—Weak and hungry, after a 24-hour battle with high winds and rough waters, Steve De Orio and two companions, crept into Put-In-Bay shortly before midnight on the crippled Detroit Cat-boat CK-23.

Searchers had been cruising the lake for the craft since early yesterday, after receipt of reports that it had disappeared. At first it was feared the boat had capsized in the storm.

De Orio left Detroit in company with two other cat-boats for the Interlake Yachting Association regatta which opened today. The three ships were caught in Sunday night's gale and at Middle Sister Island two of the yachts followed a westerly course while the CK-23 headed east. That was the last seen of her until last night.

The three men were given stimulants and were ordered to bed immediately after their arrival. Their story has not yet been told. Yachting association officials said, however, that the CK-23 had been blown around at Middle Sister Island with a broken spar.

After vainly signalling for assistance, the men finally rigged a temporary spar and when the gale lessened, set sail.

LAST CHAPTER OF SUB DISASTER IS WRITTEN WITH BURIAL OF CREW

WASHINGTON, July 13.—The last chapter in the story of the S-51's disastrous dive to the bottom of the ocean nine months ago is being written here.

Bodies of four members of the submarine's heroic crew arrived today, and will be interred in Arlington National Cemetery, burying ground of the nation's military and naval heroes.

Relatives of three others of the thirty-two lost on the boat asked the navy department for burial in Arlington, but those bodies have not been recovered.

The bodies of Lieutenant F. D. Foster, Washington; coxswain, Harry D. Elser, machinist's mate

Rudy Firm, Klein, Mont., and fireman, Charlie C. Thomas, Chillicothe, O., were taken to a receiving vault in a hearse soon after they arrived.

Today or tomorrow or the next day, whenever relatives of the heroes arrive here, sailors in blue and white will carry their comrades on their shoulders to new graves.

Here is a remarkable view of the explosion of the U. S. Naval Arsenal at Lake Denmark, N. J., where it is believed nineteen were killed and hundreds injured. The picture was taken a short time after the series of blasts started and shells were exploding around the plane from which the photographer made the pictures.

FIND SEVERED BODY OF YOUNG WOMAN IN BOSTON GRAVE YARD

Dismembering Done By Expert Surgeon Is
Belief

BOSTON, July 13.—The body of a young woman cut into eight pieces, was found in two cardboard boxes and a burlap bag beside the stone wall, bordering the New Calvary Cemetery, Mattapan, today.

The head and torso were packed in a brown pasteboard box, which bore the name and address of a florist. Other parts of the body had been divided between the smaller box and the bag. The head had not been severed.

The vital organs had been wrapped in a Boston newspaper, dated June 27, and stuffed beneath the torso.

Medical Examiner Timothy J. Leary, who has begun an autopsy, said he had found a fresh incision on the body, indicating an operation had been performed for appendicitis. The body had been dismembered by an expert surgeon, Dr. Leary said. There was nothing on the body or on the clothing concealed in the parcels to establish the victim's identity.

The woman was described as between twenty and thirty years old, evidently a person of refinement. She was a brunette, with bobbed hair and dark eyes.

The legs were clad in gray stockings and the torso in a chemise.

Other apparel including a white night-dress was contained in the parcel which had been wrapped with the newspaper.

The boxes and bag were carried to the cemetery about 5 a. m. today in an automobile, police believe, with indications that it was intended to bury them in the graveyard.

Torrio Jennel, of Mattapan, an employee of the Boston State Insane Hospital, discovered them while on his way to work.

ENFORCE RACE LAW

CLEVELAND, O., July 13.—Three men were under arrest today and additional arrests may be made in connection with the enforcement of the city ordinance prohibiting the sale of publications containing racing odds and tips. The ordinance became effective only recently.

SURRENDERED RIFF LEADER TO BE EXILED ON REUNION ISLAND

PARIS, July 13.—Abd El Krim, told him what to expect and he was reported to be reconciled to his fate. He probably will go direct to the island from Fez, where he now is confined, aboard a French warship.

With the Rifians surrendering the war practically ended. French and Spanish troops are still engaged in subduing recalcitrant tribes.

Eight rounds of bombs were dropped during seven air raids Sunday a dispatch from Fez said.

CHARGE YOUTH WITH MURDER OF THREE

Police Seek Accomplice Who Is Accused of Actual Slayings By Partner—Companion Confesses In Note

CHICAGO, July 13.—Thomas McWane, 19, was held for the grand jury on a triple charge of murder today, while police scoured Chicago, for Joseph Granite, 21, who, crazed with drugs, hid on a roof all day yesterday and then disappeared last night. He left a note on the roof threatening to commit suicide and admitting that he had killed two persons. He apparently was unaware his third victim had died.

Granite and McWane were charged with having murdered a pretty young woman Sunday school teacher, a church treasurer, and a taxicab driver Sunday night.

Protesting his innocence, McWane, said he had merely stood by when Granite shot and killed Ludwig Rose, 25, taxicab driver when the latter attempted to jump from his cab after Granite and McWane had bound his hands and feet, taken away all of his clothes but his underwear and thrown him in the rear seat of the vehicle.

His clothing in tatters and his hands and face cut and bruised, in a crash of the cab that resulted in his arrest and Granite's escape.

McWane continued his story of the attempted holdup of Frederick Hein, 42, church treasurer and Miss Marie Blang, 23, Sunday school teacher, both of whom were sitting in Hein's auto in front of Miss Blang's home.

McWane said that Hein attempted to resist the holdup and that Granite shot and killed him. Miss Blang screamed, McWane, declared.

ed and Granite fatally wounded her. Miss Blang and Hein had just returned from church services when the shooting occurred. After the shooting, McWane and Granite sped off in the taxicab, followed by police automobiles which took up the chase when the cab broke several traffic regulations. In careening around a corner, the cab turned over, pinning McWane under the car. Granite jumped from the driver's seat and escaped.

GOVERNMENT COSTS INCREASING SHOWN BY APPROPRIATIONS

Increases Add 470 Million Over Levies Of Last Year

WASHINGTON, July 13.—Cost of government in this country is going up.

Figures made public today by Rep. Martin Madden, Republican, Illinois, chairman of the house appropriations committee revealed an increase in appropriations over last session, amounting to nearly a billion dollars.

Congress appropriated during the session just closed, a total of $4,409,377,454, an increase of $470,886,681 over the total of last session, $3,938,490,773.

Madden pointed out that the postal service required an increased appropriation of $197,383,375.

Some of the other items that helped to make up the total increase included:

U. S. Veterans legislation $173,515,000 increase.

Federal Aid for roads $26,675,000 increase.

Construction of public buildings $13,887,810 increase.

Enforcement of prohibition $13,167,406, increase.

Rivers and harbors improvements $10,000,000 increase.

Principal items included in the total appropriations were:

Postal service $42,322,910.

Interest on public debt $795,000,000.

U. S. Veterans Aid $579,215,000.

Sinking fund and debt retirement funds $515,583,398.

Navy $323,040,600.

Army $271,615,207.

Pensions $202,730,000.

Federal road aid $106,675,000.

Retention of internal revenue taxes $155,500,000.

Prohibition Enforcement $41,713,106.

Rivers and Harbors $75,790,574.

The public debt which was $20,298,000,000 on June 30, 1925, had been reduced $865,000,000 to $19,433,000,000 on June 30, 1926.

Madden added "the outlook for the next fiscal year is equally promising."

"It is now estimated there will be a possible surplus of receipts over expenditures of $135,000,000," he said.

MODIFICATION OF DEBT IS UNLIKELY

WASHINGTON, July 13.—France's agitation for modification of the debt settlement with America appeared futile as the situation stood today, following announcement of Treasury Secretary Mellon that any modification proposals will have to be made to congress and not to the American Debt Funding commission.

The present settlement, pending in the senate after passage by the house, has been condemned by some Democrats and "insurgent" Republicans as too lenient and a virtual cancellation of part of the legal debt.

At the same time the efforts of Ponzi were protested by Attorney General Springling, of Massachusetts, who contends the promoter should remain in jail until Governor Miriam Ferguson grants or denies extradition.

He proposes Ponzi's bail should be fixed at $30,000.

WILL BURY WEEKS IN NATIONAL CEMETERY

LANCASTER, N. H., July 13.—At dawn today, John W. Weeks left for the last time this mountain town in which he was born.

Members of his family, who had gathered at his bedside during the hours that preceded his death yesterday, accompanied the body to West Newton, Mass.

There, on Thursday at 2 p. m., national notables will pay final tribute to the former secretary of war and former United States Senator. The body will be placed in a temporary vault in West Newton. Later in accordance with a wish often expressed by Weeks, it will be transferred to the Arlington National Cemetery in Washington.

RACHFORD IS STILL REPORTED MISSING FROM NAVY ARSENAL

Dispatches Say Xenian
Unaccounted For
Since Blast

DOVER, N. J., July 13.—

Fred J. Rachford, Xenia, O., private, U. S. Marine Corps, missing since the munitions blast at the Navy Arsenal had not been found today, and navy officials were inclined to believe he is dead.

In this connection it was pointed out that six of the nineteen bodies recovered have not been identified and one of them may be that of Rachford. On the other hand Rachford may be alive and has not yet reported to Marine Headquarters.

Another Ohioan missing was Oliver C. Bliss, private, U. S. M. A. Waterville, Ohio.

Ernest Powell, Hamilton, Ohio, and Frank C. Weber, Cleveland, were among those killed and whose bodies were recovered.

Xenia relatives received wires Monday and Tuesday direct from the chief of marines at Washington, D. C., that the local boy is still numbered among the missing.

A previous wire from the chief of police at Dover contained the statement he could not furnish information, while a wire Monday from naval headquarters at Dover said the government refused to disclose information.

DOVER, N. J., July 13.—Patrols of marines and sailors were sent into the area of the Lake Denmark naval arsenal again today. They resumed the search for victims of the explosions which wiped out the arsenal and thus far has run up a known death list of nineteen, with several still missing.

The men not only will go into the arsenal grounds, but squads will search the woods nearby and probably will drag the lake, where it was reported one or more bodies had been seen.

Officers in charge believe the search might reveal additional dead and considered that particularly it might result in some civilian missing being accounted for.

Danger of additional serious explosions was considered as having been reduced to almost nothing, over night.

Today there was comparative quiet within the arsenal area. No large shells were exploding. Occasionally there would be a bang from the mass of debris which would scatter dust for a few yards, but the explosions were firing caps and small ammunition.

The body of Lieut. Herman Schrader, of Long Beach, Calif., was identified today. It was one of those found near the building, C-31, a storehouse of TNT depth bombs and high explosive shells, around which 16 men were found killed at their posts of duty, evidently fighting fire. It was believed Schrader had taken up direction of the fire fighting force and had been killed with his squad of men when the contents of the building exploded.

Doubt was expressed as to whether identification could be made of the bodies not yet identified. If identification proves impossible, they may be buried together in a single grave at Arlington National Cemetery, near Washington.

Bodies of those identified will be sent to relatives as claimed.

PONZI SEEKING TO REGAIN FREEDOM

HOUSTON, Tex., July 13.—Seeking to reduce his bail from $20,000 to $10,000 and anticipating freedom on bond, supplied by Houston friends, Charles Ponzi, Boston money promoter, today was scheduled to make application for a writ of habeas corpus before District Judge Walter E. Monteith.

At the same time the efforts of Ponzi were protested by Attorney General Springling, of Massachusetts, who contends the promoter should remain in jail until Governor Miriam Ferguson grants or denies extradition.

He proposes Ponzi's bail should be fixed at $30,000.

TRIAL OF ALLEGED SLAYER STARTED

WEST UNION, O., July 13.—Thomas Hill, 59, was on trial here today charged with the murder of his crippled wife and her invalid mother.

Hill, after his arrest several months ago, confessed, according to police, that he burned the women alive by setting fire to his house. Both women were bed-ridden. At the time Hill, police declared, said he "was tired of caring for them."

Hill's plea was expected to be temporary insanity.

WILL PETRIFIED GAS CAUSE HEM MORE BAD LUCK?

If the authorities should investigate the gas pill which is promised to revolutionize the motor industry there would probably be bad luck in store for Hem, president of the company and hero of Gas Buglies, the comic strip that appears daily in The Evening Gazette and The Morning Republican.

Everybody knows that the gas pill is a fake and that Alec Smart, the crooked promoter, drove Hem into the morass of graft in order to give prestige to the company until Smart and his cohorts could clean up on the stock sale to the gullible public. But even the astute Amy has failed to see the foul purpose back of her husband's apparent good fortune.

If she does find Hem has been taken in, we feel sorry for him. In the meantime the Plops, good friends of Hem and Amy, may break in the crash when it does come. It all makes interesting picture-story in which Beck, the cartoonist, tells an enthralling tale.

The reader who misses reading Hem and Amy now is going to lose track of an interesting story. To keep the trials and tribulations of this pair coming to you daily, don't forget to have the paper follow you on your vacation. Just telephone 111.

GOVERNOR SMITH TO WELCOME COOLIDGE INTO EMPIRE STATE

Luncheon At Summer
White House To Feature
Meeting

PAUL SMITH'S, N. Y., July 13.—The President of the United States and Gov. Al Smith, of New York, who smiles politely when eastern Democrats hail him as "our next president" will sit down to luncheon in a wilderness setting Friday with the fishpole in the corner and mosquitos buzzing at the screen.

Gov. Smith is welcoming the nation's executive to the empire state, while the president will thank him for the unofficial welcome already given to the executive by residents here.

The governor will be accompanied by Mrs. Smith and the usual aides. The length of his visit is problematical.

President Coolidge had planned to make a week end trip to Plymouth, Vt., and there is speculation here as to whether he will postpone it because of the change in date of the luncheon with Gov. Smith, or whether he will leave for Plymouth late Friday night or the next morning.

Meanwhile President Coolidge intends to keep improving his fishing technique. He has already become the pride of his tutors in the art, and is no longer considered a tenderfoot.

EAT LOTS OF STRAWBERRIES BUT NOT WITH SUGAR AND CREAM SAYS DOCTOR

Did you ever have "hives?" If you are one of the unfortunate victims, you have probably been told that they were the result of eating strawberries, providing you suffered the attack during the berry season.

That's all the bunk, according to one Xenia druggist. The real cause for hives is not really known, at least to the knowledge of this authority. It is his firm conviction that "hives" are not caused by too much acid in the blood from foods containing acid, but an eruption of the general system. Different things cause "hives" with different people he says.

"Eat lots of strawberries" physicians say, "but don't eat them with sugar and cream. Sugar alone is all right, and cream alone is all right, but combining both with any kind of fruit is poor health practice."

The origin of the strawberry, seems to be shrouded in mystery.

just as is the origin of "hives." It is mainly an American plant, it is believed however. It grows more largely on this continent than anywhere else in the world, and the annual American crop is valued at $20,000,000, not counting the berries grown in home gardens.

The Indians ate strawberries long before the coming of the white man to this country. They mixed them with meal to make a kind of strawberry bread. After the Pilgrim colony in Massachusetts had passed its first hard winter, they found the little berries growing wild in the fields, and this was probably the first time they had ever tasted them.

About 1700 the Colonists began transplanting the wild vines to their dooryards and the berries were cultivated. Market cultivation however, was not extensively developed for some fifty years, but since that time it has grown to be a leading American horticultural industry. The development of the small variety of the berry that grew in uncultivated fields and Chronic articular rheumatism sometimes develops after one or more recurrences of an acute attack. But more often it is gradual and insidious in its appearance. Persons most liable to this disease are those whose occupations subject them to cold and dampness.

The first manifestation is stiffness and pain in one or more joints of the organism, especially the knees and hands. This disease is the slow development of years. In the treatment of chronic rheumatism, a general vitality-building process must be adopted, together with the stimulation of the circulation of the affected parts. I would advise a fasting regimen as long as the unit can endure it without manifesting signs of weakness. Fasting might be continued anywhere from three to thirty days, depending upon the weight and strength. As with acute rheumatism so with chronic, a milk diet may immediately increase the inflammation. In many cases this increase will be noticeable only for a week or ten days, after which it will begin to subside but should it continue, a strict meat diet as follows can be used with great benefit. Secure a choice cut of ordinary round steak; have the butcher remove all gristle or cartilage and then macerate or grind the meat as if for hamburger steak. Place this meat in a vessel in a very small quantity of boiling water, and allow it to simmer until the richness has disappeared. It is now ready to serve. Do not use salt or butter in this diet. Three meals of meat may be eaten each day, morning, noon and night. A half hour before each meal take from a half pint to a quart of water as hot as can be taken without sipping. The first day take only a quarter of a pound of meat at each meal, on the second day a half pound at each meal, and as much as the appetite craves thereafter. After continuing this meat diet for two or three weeks, the patient can revert to the milk diet, this facilitating recovery. Provided that the bowels can be kept active a salad diet or fruit and nut diet may be used. The daily wet sheet pack will aid in overcoming chronic symptoms.

CHILDREN OF FORMER

XENIA WIN HIGH HONORS

Miss Martha Constance Hyslop, daughter of Frank E. Hyslop, former Xenian and Mary MacHatton Hyslop, Haddonfield, N. J., has been elected by the faculty of Mount Holyoke College, South Hadley, Mass., to spend a year in study at the Université de Paris, France. This privilege is accorded only to students who show special aptitude and maintain high rank in the regular class roomwork.

Miss Hyslop, accompanied by her mother, will sail for France July 17. After a year of study and travel there, which work will be accepted in lieu of her junior year's work at Mount Holyoke, she expects to return to Mount Holyoke College to complete her course there in 1928. In her sophomore year, she maintained the first rank and was awarded the Key Prize Scholar of the sophomore class. Following this, she was elected by the college faculty along with two other students, to spend a year at the Université de Paris. The example set by his sister, Martha Constance, has evidently stimulated her brother, Francis Edwin Hyslop, who was valedictorian of the class of 1926, Haddonfield High School. In addition to this honor, he was awarded the Childrey Memorial Prize, which is determined on the following basis: scholarship, 50 percent; class leadership, determined by vote of the class 20 percent; participation in outside activities, 15 percent; co-operation with the faculty, determined by faculty vote, 15 percent. SHIPPING BODY HAS PROSPERED SINCE INAUGURAL HERE

Greene County Co-operative Association, in operation since March 16, has handled more than $160,000 worth of business. This has been due to the growing popularity of co-operative selling, officials of the association declare.

The Association in a non-profit organization, designed to serve all producers in Greene County. A. A. Conklin, is manager, who works with livestock men in various sections.

In Cedarville territory, the firm of Ritenour and Creswell, livestock dealers, handle all consignments. Farmers in that territory have the option of consigning their stock or selling direct to the firm. Men in charge of the shipping at other points are: Jamestown, Alpha Smith; Bowersville and Port William, Porter Jasper and Simon Devoe; Roxanna and Spring Valley, C. H. McKay, and Xenia, A. A. Conklin.

Greene County ranks as one of the leading livestock counties in the country. It ranks among the first in the number of pure-bred livestock and the number of cattle and hogs going through the feed lots is perhaps as great as any county in the state. A large percent of the livestock has been marketed co-operatively.

WILLIAMSON WILL NOT SUPPORT PLAN TO REPEAL PRIMARY

If the referendum campaign initiated by Charles Knight, Akron, former Congressman, to repeal the primary law of the Ohio constitution and return to a modified convention plan for nominating candidates to public office, succeeds, it will be without the support of at least one member of the state legislature.

He is Representative R. D. Williamson, Greene County's member of the lower legislative body.

The representative is dissatisfied with the movement declaring "it is the people's own fault for not going to the polls if the primary system is not altogether satisfactory."

"The voters had better see what they actually want first before jumping into anything like this," he continued. "The convention idea will not help matters any."

"Go slow before plunging headlong into the movement," is the representative's advice to voters.

It is said that 200,000 signatures in the state are required to insure submission of the issue to the voters at the election this fall.

POET SAVED FROM DROWNING BY GUARD

Miss Anne Campbell, "poet of the home" who appeared on the Chautauqua program Monday afternoon, narrowly escaped drowning in the Wilson Swimming Pool, Monday morning.

and was unable to save herself, when George Prugh, son of Mayor John Prugh, dived in the pool and rescued her. She was able to appear on the program, little the worse for her experience. Prugh is a life guard at the pool.

EX-SERVICE MEN'S REPUBLICAN CLUB FORMED IN COUNTY

Organization of the Greene County Ex-Service Men's Republican Club was effected at a meeting of a large number of World War veterans and ex-service men at the Court House Saturday.

Initial election of officers resulted in the selection of Raymond Hoven, president; Joe Adams, vice-president; and Harold Dice, secretary-treasurer.

Purpose of the club is primarily to interest itself in politics with incidental support of the republican party in Greene County.

In a resolution adopted at the meeting, unanimous endorsement was given to the candidacies of Secretary of State Thad Brown for the republican nomination for Governor, and of Paul H. Creswell, this city, for a second term as Republican State Central Committeeman from this district at the August 10 primary.

Greene County politics will be taken up at the next meeting and endorsements made, it was said.

Meetings will be held at the Court House.

The resolution presented and unanimously adopted at the Saturday meeting follows in full:

Resolved: That the Greene County Ex-Service Men's Republican Club unanimously endorse and pledge active support to the following members of the American Legion, who are candidates for public office, and recommend to the voters of this county that these men be nominated at the coming primary—

Because they have served their country in time of war;

Because they are men of high character and integrity;

Because they are well and favorably known in this county with hosts of friends vouching for them, and most of all because they are capable of filling the office for which they are candidates:

For governor—Thad Brown.

For state central committeeman—Paul H. Creswell.

ADVANTAGES OF TAX REDUCTION

Income tax receipts for the second quarter have exceeded all expectations, and in spite of the recent slash in rates, indications are that total collections for the first half of 1926 will run well over the amount collected for the same period in 1925.

The old theory of "soaking the rich man" to raise taxes has been pretty thoroughly knocked in the head. In fact a tax policy that soaks either the rich man or poor man, big industry or small industry, will dry up the sources of productive enterprises.

Every city, county and state can profit by the object lesson furnished by the reductions in federal income taxes.

If the state and local taxing authorities and public officials would devote their energies to finding ways and means to reduce taxes, instead of inventing new methods of taxation, local business in every community would be greatly benefited. New developments with increasing taxable assets would furnish new sources from which to secure more tax revenue.

Under our present system of higher and higher taxes and more and more bureaus, commissions, state undertakings and interference with private business, thousands of investors prefer to keep their money in tax-exempt government bonds. This removes billions of dollars from productive enterprise and the tax rolls, and piles up the burden on remaining taxable property, which consists chiefly of farms, homes and employing industries.

NOT HOW LONG, BUT HOW

It would be a joke on the savants and the scientists who specialize in rejuvenation, mental or physical, if when the time comes that man can just as well live to be 150 as 65 or 70, he should not know what to do with his years. Longevity in itself is not virtuous. Many a man of 105 has done nothing more for the last 40 years of his life than sit in the sun and sleep. And many a man who has died at 40 has brimmed his full of activity and experience. It isn't how long you live, but what you do with life that counts most. And these men who focus their attention upon a century or over as if it were the height of success might better teach men to spend wisely the time they now waste.

CAUSES OF HATRED

If you are shut up with the same person long enough, in relative isolation from others you come finally either to love or hate him. Indifference is practically out of the question.

That is the reason why only love sanctifies marriage. It is the reason why Explorer MacMillan enjoins silence on his companions. If they let each other alone, they can endure each other through the long isolation. If they try to be intimate, it is almost certain that they will bore and then hate each other.

Few of us have to face the ordeal of Arctic silence, but most of us are, or will be, married.

Moral: First, love your wife. Second, have each of you enough outside interests to escape the calamity of boring each other into loathing.

Today's Talk

MY DEAR OLD FRIEND

With the passing years the dear old friends loom like familiar stars.

As we learn how few there are who really stand the acid test of friendship, then it is that we come to realize how really short life is anyway. For in the span that is ours, there seems but time to gather a little handful of our way.

But somehow this little group is very precious. The intelligent mind, the understanding heart, the peculiar and interesting personalities of the favored and beloved few grow with the years.

Even the failings and faults get from us but a tolerant smile. For the "overlook" in sincere and enduring friendship is as fine and great as the "inlook."

The other day I received a letter from my dear old friend of former years. It came to me like a fresh pot of flowers placed in my room. All the fragrance and beauty of the old friendship were there. The humor of the man, the quaint interest in unusual things, the desire for thought food, the kindness and gentleness and big heartedness of the man. All glowed in his letter.

He signed his letter: "Old Rain in the Face," a name given him in former years because of our journeying together in strange lands.

When losses come and the clouds get too thick, the dear old friend's interest and love shine through them all and give sun and soft shadows that make a beautiful day.

Nothing is ever as bad as it seems. Life is really very pleasant and good. But life in general is infinitely bigger than your life. We are wrapped up too much in our own individual desires, lacks, and failings. They do not matter so much as do the things far beyond—other lives, other interests, high places yet to climb.

If you have one or two dear old friends, you are full of wealth!

Unless you see the "Bayer Cross" on package or on tablets you are not getting the genuine Bayer Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians over twenty-five years for Colds, Headache, Neuritis, Lumbago, Toothache, Rheumatism, Neuralgia, Pain, Pain.

Each unbroken "Bayer" package contains proven directions. Handy boxes of twelve tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell bottles of 24 to 100.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES
Mrs. C. C.: "Some time ago another reader asked for the following, which a friend has given me: 'Directions for a crocheted Straw Hat—Chain four, join, one single croch in ring. Round Two: Two single croch in each stitch. Round Three: * One single croch in first stitch, two single croch in next. Repeat from * around. Round Four: * One single croch in each of first two stitches. Two single croch in next; repeat from * around, thus increasing in every third stitch. Round Five: Increase in every fourth stitch. Increase in this way till there are fifty-six stitches around. Then work plain for two rounds. Or finish as suits your fancy, making more of a brim if desired.' I have made one of these hats myself for sports wear, in tan color, but do not know what to wear with it. Can you advise me?"

Answer: It is not exactly withering in my province to give advice on clothes, but since you have been so kind as to send us the above directions I will, at least, tell you what I would wear with it: a Kasha light-weight wool skirt of light tan or buff-color light weight slip-over sweater with high neckline; a silk or a cotton broadcloth blouse (which falls over the skirt, under the sweater) or white or buff color, with turn-over collar which may be held down with a long bar pin in front (or you could wear a mannish necktie, buff-color, if you prefer); a light-tan suede (very narrow) belt, to hold down sweater; and buff-color stockings with tan crepe-rubber-soled shoes. If you wished a cooler costume you could buy one of the pretty sports silk dresses in tan to match the hat. Every girl and woman should have at least one sports costume in her summer wardrobe. There are so many occasions upon which she can use it! But we housekeepers often forget that we need not give up sports (be it only motoring or an occasional hike). We would all be more efficient—more "fit" physically for our housework—if we refused to neglect out-of-door pursuits.

Bride: "I have a beautiful alabaster vase. How can I clean it?"

Answer: Sponge with flannel moistened with spirits of turpentine will remove all kinds of stains.

Wash with tepid suds of white soap and wipe dry, then polish with a soft dry brush dipped in plaster of Paris.

TAX PAYMENT TIME DRAWS TOWARD END

"Don't wait too long." This familiar song is being broadcast from the office of County Treasurer P. A. Jackson who announces prompt payments of semi-annual June taxes will avoid the last-minute jam around Tuesday, July 20, when the time limit expires.

Approximately $200,000 has already been received in the county's coffers but nearly $250,000 must still be collected within the next seven days to avoid delinquency.

Collection this year is proceeding with normal rapidity. Treasurer Jackson says. The treasurer's office is open every day and also on Saturday afternoons until July 20, for accommodation of tax payers, he continues.

Collection of June taxes totals approximately half a million dollars or more every year.

PEKING AUTOISTS MUST DRIVE SLOW

PEKING, July 13—Peking motorists must henceforth refrain from driving their cars "at full speed" through the streets, says a police proclamation.

Two reasons are given: First, because of dry weather the streets are full of dust, which is detrimental to health when inhaled. Second—apparently an after thought on the part of the police—accidents should be avoided.

Greene County History

EARLY LAWYERS

Hidden away in the recesses of the attic of the Court House are several boxes containing documents concerned with the admission to the local bar of a number of Greene County's earliest lawyers.

The earliest in the list was that of William Alexander, admitted in 1817. The latest was Perry Hawes admitted in 1862. The list includes twenty-one lawyers, not the total number of course who were admitted between 1817 and 1862.

It was the custom in those days for the applicant to be examined by three or more members of the bar—usually three, but often five.

Their certificates were then turned over to the court with their recommendation, whereupon the judge formally admitted the applicants to the bar.

Names of the twenty-one lawyers whose bar papers were preserved, follow: William Alexander, 1817; Thomas Coke Wright, 1826; Cornelius Clarke, 1828; Henry Avery, 1831; Mark Anthony Nathan, 1834; Hiram Jones, 1837; Nathan Starbuck, 1838; Robert S. Reynolds, 1839; John B. McClymont, 1840; Charles T. Traugh, 1842; John H. Watson, 1844; William E. Morris, 1847; James D. Liggett, 1847; John Coates, 1847; George H. Frey, 1847; John F. Loyd, 1848; L. H. Culver, 1855; Darius Dislail, 1857; John L. Oram, 1860, and Perry Hawes, 1862.

Little Miss Curious, Little Miss Pry,
Little Miss What's That and Little Miss Why,
Little Miss Tell Me and Little Miss How,
Would I could settle your problems right now,
But wait for the answers. They'll come in the things you must grow up to learn.

Little Miss Question Box, flooring me flat
Wanting to know all of this and of that.
If when we're naughty God sees and is sad,
Why does He let little children be bad?
Why can't the angels who brought me to you
Bring me a cute little girl baby, too?

What makes the whiskers come out on your chin?
Grandma has teeth she takes out and puts in.
How did she get them? and why does she need them?
Glasses whenever she sits down to read?
Little Miss Busy Tongue, I can't explain
Half of the problems which trouble your brain.

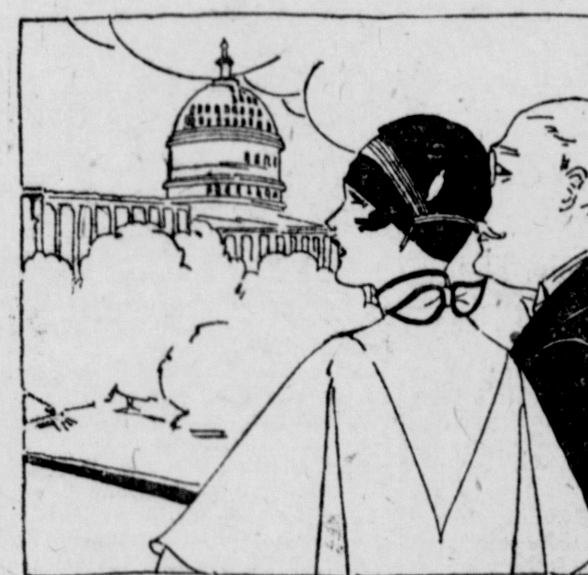

Little Miss Curious, Little Miss Pry,
Little Miss What's That, and Little Miss Why,
Come with your questions and wide-open eyes,

For even I wonder, as onward I go
And am puzzled by things I am too young to know.

MITZI BEGINS SEEING THINGS

By Jay V. Jay

"Yes, that is the Capitol Dome," explains Dad to Mitzi. They have just arrived in Washington and Mitzi is going to be shown a thing or two about this famous city. (High time the young lady learned, too.) "Always keep it in sight and you can remember the direction of the hotel," advises Dad. Mitzi promises to.

What fascinating windows the Washington shops have! Mitzi's been telling herself "just one more" for a mile or two. Who could blame her for looking at this two piece style with bows down the side. Another two piece dress combines plain and printed material. And now where is that Dome?

Of course, Mitzi succumbs to her usual temptation—window shopping. No one can look in two opposite directions at once and what if she does lose sight of the Dome? At Mitzi's left is a figured crepe dress with organdie collar and cuffs. The other dress is of wash silk with a sort of scalloped checked jabot.

Nowhere! No Dome in sight. But wasn't it fortunate that Mitzi sighted Aunt Sophia whom she caught looking a little helpless? Aunt Sophia has been doing shop windows too. (You've had time now to notice how smart Mitzi's silk hat is.) This is only their first day in Washington but they have both seen a lot. Oh, yes, a lot!

The Theatre

Never before in the history of the American theater has so much criticism been directed against the stage. Some declare it too sordidly commercial, others that it is too "nebulously futuristic" and still others that it is too lascivious, etc.

The Theater Magazine has prepared an interesting symposium, inviting the opinions of people—not actors, whose reactions to the theater as intelligent playgoers should be of special interest. If you have any particular views on the subject constructive or destructive, the magazine will be glad to print them, in a monograph not exceeding 500 words.

Here's what some of the first contributors have given to the department: "The present day theater, like every other human institution is a mixture of good and bad" says the Rev. John Haynes Holmes, minister of the Community Church, New York. "The bad, as represented and furthered by the commercial managers, is very bad. I doubt if the theater in any age has ever been worse in this respect than today. But the present-day theater has good in it as well as bad."

Never before has the theater been more alive or interesting than it is today to Mrs. Gorge Bellows, who religiously follows New York theater offerings and knows what she is talking about. Mrs. Bellows goes on to make recent offerings of the Rialto and points out the fine spots of several that have been unduly criticized.

"The trouble with the stage at this present time is that an appreciable section of it has come under the control of a cheap class of panders," characteristically exclaims John S. Summer, secretary, Society for the Suppression of Vice. "They have successfully created an appetite for the low order of drama, but the general public was ignorant and when warned from time to time was apathetic and as a consequence public officials felt justified in refraining from punitive or restraining action for which they heard no general demand. This gave the panders a feeling of safety in purveying their particular brand of 'dope,' is what the reformer says.

FEELING LOTS BETTER NOW

Writes Ethel May Snider Who Used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Hartford City, Ind.—Doing housework and taking care of a sick woman proved to be too much for Ethel May Snider, R. R. 1 of Hartford City, until she started taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Overwork had so undermined her health that she had to give up all outside work, and when she saw this medicine advertised in the "Star" and other papers, she went to a druggist and got a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She took it regularly, was greatly benefited and now feels very much better.

Ethel May Snider's experience is similar to that of thousands of other women in all walks of life, who have sent testimonials to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Company of Lynn, Mass.

From Maine to California, from Wisconsin to Texas, and from Nebraska to Florida letters are received every day from grateful women who say the Vegetable Compound has helped to restore their health.

SCHLESINGER WILL CUT DETOUR NUMBER

COLUMBUS, July 13.—Ohio motorists will have fewer detours to contend with under a new policy announced by George F. Schlesinger, state highway director.

The director has instructed all division engineers to avoid setting up detours except when it is absolutely necessary. This will mean elimination of detours on roads under repair by having the workmen maintain an open road along the regular route while repairing one side at a time.

Brockman Resigns Helm Of Reserves; Cyphers Named

PITCHER SUCCEEDS TO MANAGERSHIP; CONLEY IS CAPTAIN

Will Play Merchants Sunday Instead of Springfield

G. H. Brockman, manager of the Xenia Reserves Baseball Club, has resigned, effective immediately, it became known Tuesday.

Chet Cyphers, who is playing alternately at third base and as pitcher this season, has been elected playing manager with Jug Conley, second baseman, appointed field captain. Brockman declined to disclose the actual reason for his resignation in mid-season, but it is understood the action was due to certain managerial differences which involved finances.

During his leadership this season, Brockman rounded out one of the best teams to represent Xenia on the baseball diamond in years, the team winning eleven games and losing but four during the first half of the season just closed.

The change in managers has also been followed by a revision of the schedule for the remainder of the season. The most immediate change is the game scheduled for next Sunday.

Instead of playing the When Clothiers of Springfield a return game, the Reserves will oppose the Xenia Merchants in what is termed a mid-season game at Washington Park. Contest will start at 2:30 o'clock.

It is understood the team's lineup for the game will remain intact.

Cyphers is expected to also prove a popular manager. He has been the mainstay of the aggregation both on the mound and at bat this season, leading his mates in the latter respect with an average of .437. Conley is another well-liked player and is a fixture at second. His hitting has also played a prominent part in a majority of the Reserve victories.

FRANKS LEADING HITTERS ON XENIA RESERVES RECORDS SHOW

Eleven victories in fifteen games is the record of the Xenia Reserves for the first half of the season just closed.

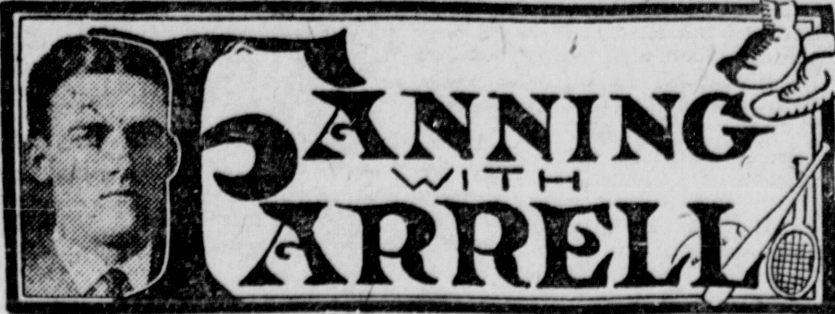

During this time the team has been at bat 523 times, scored ninety-nine runs, and made 163 hits for a batting average of .321. The team is averaging six runs and eleven hits per game.

The team has mapped out a schedule which will carry the season well into October.

After their experiences at the 1924 Olympic games and the recent French national hard court championships, several of the American tennis stars said they didn't care to return to France for championship competition.

The writer was a spectator at both tournaments, which were of international importance, and he agrees with the players that the arrangements made for their comfort and convenience were less than the second class compared to Wimbledon, Forest Hills, German town and Longwood.

The committee in charge of the hard court championship, in which the greatest players in the world were entered, failed to secure enough officials. Several times newspapermen were asked to act as linesmen and before the important match between Mrs. Marlon Zinderstein Jessup and Madame Mathieu, the writer was asked to act as the umpire as the players were ready to start, and there were no officials present.

No drinking water was provided on the courts. One of the Argentine players asked for water in one of the early matches and a bottle was brought to him from the club house. He accepted with thanks and the waiter, with annoyance, said:

"Ten francs, please."

The player didn't have any money with him and one of the American newspapermen in the gallery advanced the necessary francs. Vinie Richards, Olympic champion and captain of the American men's team, said that he had been forced to pay twenty francs daily for water to take on the court with him.

No towels were provided. Players were forced to use their handkerchiefs and when they had become saturated they were forced to ask friends in the gallery to provide assistance.

There was a marked insufficiency of balls. In one match the players started with four balls and had to play four sets. Three balls were lost over the screen and they had to finish the match with one ball.

There were very few ball caddies and those who were available annoyed more than served the players and in several instances they were of such little use that the players asked them to be called from the courts.

Very little consideration was

SACRED MUSIC

By Margrett McNeill

Since man has had anything approaching what can be properly called an organized form of worship, there has been in attendance ceremonies which may be, with more or less degree of propriety, designated sacred music.

The spread of Christianity required that sacred music be purified. This work was first begun in the latter part of the fourth century by Saint Ambrose, one of the Latin fathers, and two centuries later Saint Gregory made valuable contributions to this endeavor.

One of the first attempts toward regeneration of the sacred drama was the production of a Passion play, "The Passion of Christ and the Sorrows of the Blessed Virgin."

A most important feature of present day sacred music is the Christmas Cantata. It is well to remember, in this connection, that the first of these ceremonies and undoubtedly the greatest, was sung to a small audience of Galilean shepherds on the hills near Bethlehem, by that angel's chorus announcing the birth of our Lord. Years later shepherds came at Christmas time to the Eternal City to pipe their sacred melodies before a representation of the Virgin Mother. Today elaborate preparations are made in most Christian churches to observe that occasion with appropriate sacred music, and for that purpose we have been given some of the world's greatest compositions of which Handel's "Messiah" is perhaps the most beautiful.

Can we wonder that music is occupying such an increasingly important place in modern day religious service?

Explains How Enlarged Veins Can Be Reduced

Often times veins burst and cause much suffering, expense and loss of employment

Many people have become dependent because they have been led to believe that there is no remedy that will reduce swollen veins and bunched.

If you will get a two-ounce original bottle of Moore's Emerald Oil (full strength) at any first class drug store and apply it at home as directed, you will quickly notice an improvement which will continue until the veins and bunched are reduced to normal.

Moore's Emerald Oil has brought much comfort to worried people all over the country; is one of the wonderful discoveries of recent years and anyone who is disappointed with the use can have their money refunded. Sayre's Drug Store sells lots of it.

"Not Possible To Classify" By Mack Sauer

BLUE BEARD
There was once a wealthy old devil who was so ugly that people would have nothing to do with him. His nose was red but his beard was a terrible blue, and to all countryside he was known as "Blue Beard."

Now one day Blue Beard chanced to stop in the Blue Lantern restaurant here he ordered a plate of blue points. The waitress was dressed in blue and she had the blues, for this was blue Monday. However, Blue Beard fell in love with her and married her that day.

For about two weeks everything went fine and dandy. He ate the stuff she cooked and managed to live. She wore smoked glasses and stood his ugliness the best she could. Then one day he had to hit the pike for about two weeks on a business trip. He gave her the keys, explaining that one was for the woodshed and pointed out where she would find the ax. He told her another key was for the stables and asked that they be cleaned daily. But one key was for the cellar and he warned her not to use it.

Well, the wife stood it for about fifteen minutes after Blue Beard was gone. Then her curiosity was too much. She had to know what was in the cellar. Great Caesar! She found clogs and cans, blue berries, and a foul smelling liquid. She took several drinks and went to bed.

The next morning the ugly old codger returned unexpectedly on a blue mule and invited his good wife to go to the cellar with him. The poor woman threw herself at his feet and told him what had happened. He was just ready to cut off her head with his pocket knife when two soldiers rushed into the room. They took books of regulations from their pockets and found under Section 2-346 L. C. U. that they had a right to slay the old boy, which they did. The widow married one of them and they lived happily for weeks.

Soon however the blueberries were gone and so were the strolls beneath the blue moon. The soldier deserted and the woman became a widow again. She advertised for him in The Gazette Lost Columns, but no trace was ever found of him. Chalk up another big lie.

"All work and no play makes Jack a dull boy," so an old saying informs us. On the other hand it often makes Jack a lot of jack. If you're out of a job and tired of playing, why not accept one of the jobs offered in the "Help Wanted" columns tonight. Gazette Want Ads will help you get some jack.

PARIS OVERWHELMS MOROCCO SULTAN WHEN CITY GIVES HIM WARM WELCOME

PARIS, July 13.—"Praise to Allah! This is the Prophet's Paradise," repeated time and again Mouley Youssef, of Morocco and Commander of the Faithful, to Theodore Steeg, French High Commissioner, as they rode down the brilliant Champs-Elysees today through the vast Place de la Concorde, along the stately and historic rue de Rivoli, passing the Louvre and the Gardens of the Tuilleries, on their way to the City Hall for the official reception by the municipality.

It was the Sultan's first view of the Ville Lumiere apart from the fleeting glance he got yesterday on his arrival from Tunis. Bewildered by the magnificence of the buildings, the splendor of the thronged streets, the beauty of the women and the cheers which Parisians lavish on all foreign potentates, Mouley Youssef could merely clasp his hands, uttering phrases intelligible only to the Arab interpreter, how his turbulent diamond bedecked head to right and left and then sink softly back in the limousine, gazing with childish delight at the first great European city he had ever seen.

Brass helmeted cuirassiers and gorgeously plumed Republican Guards formed the principal escort of the Moroccan monarch but his Black Bodyguard composed of the one hundred calif, or chief men, of the great tribes of Western Islam, from Morocco, Algeria and Tunisia, came next before the battalions of infantry and cavalry of the French army.

Arriving at the Place del'Hotel de Ville, the Sultan and his sons and Mr. Steeg were welcomed at the entrance of the City Hall by Georges Guillaumin, Chairman of the Municipal Council, Paul Boujard, prefect of the department of the Seine, and Chief of Police Alfred Mauraun. In the Hall of St. John were grouped the municipal councilors and the members of the general council of the Seine, the mayors of the various quarters of Paris and the suburbs.

President Doumergue was accompanied the same honors as the Sultan, on occasions such as this the municipality of Paris being the host even of the Chief Magistrate of the Republic.

Prefect Boujard, Chairman of the General Council of the Department made speeches emphasizing the fact that the presence of the Sultan in Paris indicated clearly to the world that there was peace in Morocco and that the protectorate accepted by France was having the effect aimed at by the Franco-Spanish agreement of 1912.

High Commissioner Steeg replied in the name of the Sultan, thanking France for the long continued efforts she had made, at a high cost in blood and treasure, to bring Morocco into the realm of civilized nations.

This evening there will be an official reception for the Sultan at the Elysee Palace, the residence of the President of the Republic, houses of parliament, eminent figures in the world of art, literature and science, distinguished diplomats and officials who have taken part in the Moroccan negotiations will be the chief guests. Tomorrow, Bastille Day, the Sultan and President Doumergue will be present at the grandiose military review at Longchamps.

characterization of the costumes, songs and folk dances of the Russian people.

The second part was easily the educational feature. The Russians, a rough, dreamy, faithful and temperamental people, are pictured in various and common aspects and yet the audience was held entranced by the diversity and frequent humor.

The first part included rare Russian compositions, which had a conspicuous part in the program. The Russian singers enjoyed a well deserved reception and it was highly appropriate that this season should offer the Moscow Ensemble.

The GILDED ROSE

by May Christie

LEADING CHARACTERS IN THE STORY:

ROSILYN PAGE, the hard-worked daughter of a Long Island innkeeper, finds herself on his death, heiress of a huge fortune. She is deeply in love with...

LANDIS RIDGEWAY, a charming young fellow in financial difficulties, who visited the inn regularly for ten years and was always kind to the lonely girl. His heart has been broken by the faithlessness of...

STEVIE VAN VORST, a wealthy old roue, although she is fond of Landis.

MRS. FLORENCE RIDGEWAY, Landis' mother, fearing poverty invites Rosilyn to visit her and her son, and induces Landis to marry Rosilyn, although he loathes himself for taking her advice. Immediately after the ceremony, Rosilyn overhears gossip in which she learns that Landis has married her for her money—she hears herself spoken of as the Gilded Rose. Heartbroken, she prepares to leave on her wedding journey.

Lydia Harbrook meanwhile is in Paris, reveling in a glorious spring day. Lydia goes riding with one of her admirers, the Vicomte Calfax.

After an afternoon at the races with old Van Vorst Lydia returning home with him—her mind somewhat occupied with thoughts of Landis.

Rupert Briscoe, an old friend of Landis' meets Lydia at one of the night-clubs and breaks the news to her of Ridgeway's marriage to Rosilyn. Rosilyn and Landis have been loaned a home for their honeymoon. After a long, silent, unhappy ride, they arrive at their destination, and are shown their rooms.

CHAPTER 18
Love Dies Hard

THE luggage was brought upstairs. Landis' cases were deposited in the dressing-room. When he himself appeared.

When they were alone, he approached Rosilyn rather awkwardly, and stooped to give her a perfunctory kiss.

She drew back with a little laugh that sounded almost natural. Her swift resolution had consolidated. "Landis, there isn't any need for that you know. I think you and I understand each other."

He reddened. "What do you mean?"

"That neither of us need play at loving when we both know that the marriage—our marriage—was purely a matter of convenience."

She got the words out somehow, though each one was a stab of agony to her loving, sensitive young heart.

Dumbly he stared at her. She continued bravely:

"It's a fair enough bargain on both sides. You've lifted me up from nothing to a—fine position—as your wife. On my side I can give you something, too. But we needn't keep up the pretence of caring."

She choked back the lump that would rise in her throat—"for each other, any longer, beyond being just—just friends. See?"

"No, I don't see." He bit his lip, disturbed and startled.

"Then you will in time. And be grateful to me. I'm thinking of you as well as of myself." Then she added, as though it were an afterthought: "I've ordered the bed made up for you in the dressing room. You'll be quite comfortable in there—or there are plenty of other larger rooms to choose from."

He looked gravely, intently, at his young wife.

"A marriage—in name only—Rosilyn? Is that what you mean?"

"Yes, Landis, that is what I mean," she answered, very low.

Young Mrs. Landis Ridgeway, slowly descending the staircase of the great, gloomy country-house for the first honeymoon breakfast with her husband, looked anything but a radiant and happy bride.

"The maiden all forlorn, I'd call her! Not much class or style, is she?" whispered one servant to another, on the upper landing.

To which the second one replied: "When I took in their morning tea, you could have knocked me down with a feather, for the bridegroom wasn't in her room at all, but sleeping soundly in the dressing room, and she broad awake, with her eyes all swollen as though she'd spent the night crying! I'm right sorry for the girl, I am!"

Unconscious of these whispered comments, Rosilyn found her way to the dining room, where the morning meal was laid for two.

There was no sign of Landis. Rain was pouring down the windows, as though the very heavens had opened. Torrential rain, as heavy as last night! The odd idea came to Rosilyn that the sympathetic skies were weeping for the travesty of this—her honeymoon! To be married for one's money! Oh! humiliating thought!

And such irony of fate to learn the truth when it was just too late and the ceremony was over!

"Good morning, Lady Fair!" Landis strode into the room with a determined air of making the best of things and deposited a light kiss upon her cheek. To the sensitive unhappy little bride, the effort of the marital salute—so passionless so perfunct—made the hurt ache more bitterly.

She replied, mechanically: "Horrible day, isn't it? Worse than yesterday!"

He flung a keen look at her. Gad! The poor child did look bad this morning. Yesterday's festivities had been too much for her. Not that there had been anything festive in the affair—he had loathed the inane formality, the pomp, the crowd of inquisitive spectators—

he had loathed his own part in the business, too—if it hadn't been for his mother, and the thought that

Rosilyn's affections were involved, darned if he would have had the courage to go through with it!

But what a relief it had been last night to learn that his bride looked on the whole thing merely as a marriage of convenience!

When she had first told him so, he had been utterly astounded, believing as he did, that she was fond of him.

Yet—once the shock was over—he was thankful that the child had shown such commonsense. He never would have thought it possible. "A fair enough bargain on both sides," she had informed him, coolly. "You've lifted me from nothing to a fine position as your wife. On my side I can give you something, too. But we needn't keep up the pretence of caring."

"That had definitely 'let him out'—the knowledge that her motive in accepting him had not been any foolish love, after all, but an understandable social ambition.

And yet— From a talk they once had had together—it was on the very night her father died, wasn't it?—she had seemed so simple and unworldly, so capable of genuine emotion. He had kissed her, lightly and unthinkingly and her reaction to that careless kiss had startled him, proving—as he had thought—that there were hidden and volcanic fires...

Her inheritance had killed all that, it seemed, bringing to the surface all the worldly instincts that, in his cynicism, he now accredited to every woman.

Well, Rosilyn was no worse than himself, was she?

And Lydia was worse than Rosilyn, since Lydia—determined to marry money—still vowed she loved him. She was untrue to love, untrue to womanhood...

His lip gave a little quirk of pain at the thought of Lydia. How he had loved her beauty and her gaiety and charm!

He had sworn to kill that love of his—but love dies hard.
